

SECTION 11: INTERNAL EVALUATIONS FOR CONTINUING STATUS AND PROMOTION

Promotion reviews are based on assessments of candidates' assigned teaching, service, research, and other duties according to benchmarks set out in department, college and University criteria. In making such assessments, internal reviewers should follow the policies in the University Handbook for Appointed Personnel for continuing status and promotion, along with the University's Statement on Professional Conduct in UHAP 7.01.01. That Statement sets out the expectation that all faculty are accountable and must be inclusive and respectful, demonstrate integrity, follow established standards, protect University assets, and provide a safe environment for those who work, learn, and visit with us. If a candidate has been found to have committed research or other forms of professional misconduct, that finding may be considered in promotion reviews. Findings of professional misconduct should be assessed against how they affect candidates' abilities to achieve the purposes of their assigned teaching, research and service duties. More information on these provisions is provided in the Guide to the Promotion Process.

As with the provisions used by the National Science Foundation, National Institutes of Health and other groups to ensure the impartiality of reviews, collaborators are defined as individuals who have co-authored books, articles, abstracts, or grant proposals within the last five-years. Collaborators also include individuals who have been a candidate's dissertation advisor, mentor, supervisor, co-instructor, or close coworker in a lab, department, or residency program, even if this relationship occurred more than five years prior to the review.

Committee members or administrators who have coauthored substantial publications or grants with a candidate, or have significant financial, personal, or other substantial interests with the candidate or their work, must recuse themselves to avoid raising concerns about their impartiality. Rather than serving on review committees or as an administrative reviewer, collaborators should provide a separate letter that describes the independent contributions of the candidate. Collaborator letters are placed in Section 10B.

Any questions regarding whether committee members, heads or deans are independent reviewers or collaborators should be discussed with the Vice Provost for Faculty Affairs before the committee meets. Questions on these procedures should be directed to facultyaffairs@arizona.edu.

While not required, it is recommended that the Chair of the Peer Review Committees encourage members to sign and provide this Confidentiality Agreement that will be kept by the Chair of the Committee until the end of the promotion cycle.

Department Committee's Report
